U.S. Bombers Plaster Viet Nam Jungles

$1 MILLION FIRE. Firemen are shown battling a blaze in downtown Ashtabula, O., Friday in an attempt to prevent it from reaching a hotel. Three small buildings were destroyed at a loss of $1 million. (UPI Telephoto)

XUYEN MOC, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force B57 jet bombers plastered the jungles 50 miles southeast of Saigon today but 1,600 government ground troops moving in under them failed to make contact with the Viet Cong.

The U.S. bombers made runs throughout the day over the jungles at 20-minute intervals and at sunset a cloud of smoke hung over the area. The planes dropped 750-pound and 500-pound bombs.

Many government forces flew into the zone in a massive helicopter airlift, hoping to find not only concentrations of Communist guerrillas but also arm depots.

"They're out there somewhere," said a U.S. adviser. "And somehow I don't think those B57s are making them very happy."

Extremely large Communist forces are believed encamped throughout the area.

Government forces spread out

Enemy Hunted

fast after each bombing raid. One team of engineers hastily cleared a 300-yard long airstrip and a twin-engine U.S. Army Caribou transport landed with a load of fuel, rockets and ammunition.

The plane came in against a strong crosswind and over a power line and touched down on the downhill strip. It came to a halt less than halfway down the strip.

The pilots were identified as Capt. Glen A. Leister, whose wife Sue lives at Kingfisher, Okla., and Capt. Herbert Beson, whose wife Freda lives at Bear-den, Ark. After unloading the supplies, the airmen took the plane off again.

The tangled area of jungle and undergrowth is in Phuoc Tuy Province, east of the South Vietnamese capital. Vietnamese troops have been grappling there for several days with the elusive Communist jungle fighters.

The helicopter airlift numbered 137 aircraft, mostly troop carriers. The largest previous helicopter airlift numbered 115 aircraft.

Military authorities said one of the helicopters went down due to mechanical failure. The airlift was preceded by a strike of 20 U.S. Air Force B57 jets and 40 propeller driven Skyraiders flown by Vietnamese pilots. Late in the afternoon another strike of B57s swept down on the area.

It appeared likely that the massive "search and destroy" operation was supported by troops moving in from surrounding areas on the ground. But military spokesmen said "we cannot discuss the troop units involved."

The "chopper" force was drawn from several fields and evidently numbered a substantial portion of the helicopter force available in Viet Nam.

The area being combed was near Binh Gia where the Viet Cong in a series of raids and ambushes late last year gave the Vietnamese army one of its bloodiest defeats. Since that time the Viet Cong has been in effective control of most of the area.

Spokesmen for South Viet Nam's national police said in Saigon they had uncovered a Communist political organization operating in the capital under the name of the "People's Self Determination Movement."

Police sources said a number of the subversive groups had infiltrated student groups, religious groups, and other organizations. (Turn to VIET NAM, Page 3)

Steel Talks To Resume On March 8

Earliest Practical Date, McDonald, Cooper Point Out

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Negotiations for a new contract in the basic steel industry apparently will resume March 8. And if they do, it won't come too soon for either side.

A telegram exchange Friday between United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald and R. Conrad Cooper, the industry negotiator, indicated March 8 would be the earliest practical date to resume the talks, suspended last January during the bitter steelworkers election campaign.

The exchange came as concern mounted in both industry and union over stockpiling by steel users, jittery over the possibility of a steel strike. The union can strike May if no settlement is reached.

I. W. Abel, USW secretary-treasurer reportedly is leading McDonald in the close election.

The steelworker votes still are being tallied by union tellers behind locked doors in Pittsburgh and there is no indication how long it will be before the results are known.

Despite the strong possibility that protests will throw the election into the courts, it appeared from talks Friday with officials of the U.S. Labor Department that whoever is declared the winner by the tellers will take

Bill To Overhaul Welfare System Awaiting Action

By WILLIAM S. VANCE
Review Staff Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Ohio—What may be the only major administration bill of the session, aside from the governor's budget, is expected to come before the Ohio General Assembly within the week.

The bill will call for an extensive overhaul of the administrative structure and financing of Ohio's public welfare programs. It's aimed at inequities, duplication and confusion in the present public assistance domain.

It was expected earlier in the session but had to be rewritten after the 105th General Assembly liberalized the program of aid to dependent children during the special session late last year.

For the last two weeks, the re-organization bill has been under the scrutiny of Gov. James A. Rhodes' staff. The governor's top aide, John M. McElroy, says it has been cleared for introduction.

Although all details of the bill have not been disclosed, it is certain to increase welfare costs in some counties and can be expected to cause more than a few ripples when committee hearings begin.

Assistant State Welfare Director Robert Canary says the intent of the bill is to pinpoint responsibility for providing a uniform standard of living for Ohio's welfare recipients.

The bill will come to the leg-

$1.25 Million Measure

House Unit's OK Due School Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Education and Labor Committee is expected to give final approval today to the administration's $1.25 billion school bill.

Only one portion of the measure awaited a committee okay, but it was the heart of the program, a $1 billion plan to help finance the education of less fortunate children.

Under it, the federal government would grant school districts 50 per cent of their average per-pupil cost for each youngster from a family with an income of under $2,000.

Some opponents of this formula have argued that this would mean districts with better programs and resulting higher per-pupil costs would get more money than poorer districts.

The administration has replied that differences in the cost of living make a dollar go farther in the poorer areas; hence, the bill's goal — upgrading education for the so-called pockets of poverty — would be accomplished.

Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., also is worried about the administration aid formula. He said it doesn't take into account some 227,000 children from families

North Viet Charged In White Paper

U.S. Report Says It's Same As If It Were An Invasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States published a new "white paper" on Viet Nam today that charged North Viet Nam with waging an aggressive war against South Viet Nam as if it were an open invasion.

"It is important," the State Department said in the 14,000-word document, "for free men to know what has been happening in Viet Nam, and how, and why. That is the purpose of this report."

An evident purpose of the report, too, is to lend support to the Johnson administration's policy of striking against targets in North Viet Nam. These bombings, undertaken three weeks ago, are expected to continue.

The war in Viet Nam has reached new levels of intensity, the white paper said. "The elaborate effort by the Communist regime in North Viet Nam to conquer the south has grown, not diminished."

This effort, the State Department said, is a deliberate campaign of concealed aggression "as real as that of an invading army."

The white paper was designed to show with precise figures the extent to which the Viet Cong guerrillas in the south are supported and controlled by North Viet Nam. Thereby it sought to refute any suggestion that it is simply a civil war being fought in South Viet Nam.

The United States "will not abandon friends who want to remain free," the paper said. "It will do what must be done to help them."

Thus, Washington underlined its support of Saigon, an support

The director had been ill but stayed on the job for several days before consulting a physician Wednesday. Ordered to stay away from the office at City Hall, he had been at his home on Elysian Way since then.

Vodrey was admitted to the hospital yesterday for treatment and tests after he failed to throw off the illness.

Court Affirms Number Slip Indictments

Defendants In Firm At Lisbon Lose Bid To Nullify Charges

LISBON — The State Supreme Court Friday upheld the 7th District Court of Appeals in affirming indictments of manufacturing numbers slips against the Lisbon Sales Book Co.

In 1960, the sales book firm was raided the state officials for allegedly printing books used in the numbers game.

On Dec. 14, 1961, Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp ruled that the new state law was unconstitutional as it did not specify that the manufacturing and printing was done with the knowledge or intent that the article manufactured or printed was used for the numbers game.

This ruling was appealed by the state, with the county prosecutor's office assisting, and on Feb. 19, 1963, the court of appeals reversed the lower court and Judge Sharp's ruling.

The sales book firm and its officers, Martin Sufrin, Isadore Sufrin, Joseph Sufrin and Michael Schiedmeier, all of Pittsburgh, who were indicted by the Grand Jury, appealed to the State Supreme Court on Jan. 3, 1964.

The next step apparently will see the cases returned to common Pleas Court to be heard on their merits by a petit jury or the defendants can appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

20 Fire Alarm Boxes Restored To Service

The east circuit of the city's Gamewell fire alarm system was restored to service this morning after apparently being knocked out by a line break early Friday afternoon.

Firemen said they had not received any official notice from an electrician, but a meter at Central Station indicated the 20 call boxes east of Broadway, including the East End, were back in operation.

Police Stand Guard

Harlem's Tense At Malcolm Rite

NEW YORK (AP) — A tense Harlem bade farewell today to Malcolm X, assassinated black nationalist leader, at funeral services that attracted throngs of mourners and an army of police.

The bearded controversial figure was laid out in a white robe for the ceremony in Faith Temple, Church of God in Christ, Protestant, which volunteered its facilities for the Muslim rites.

Police manned barricades that stretched three blocks in front of the church and into side streets. Other bluecoats were stationed in doorways and on rooftops to guard against possible violence. They kept spectators moving and barred automobiles from the street.

The widow of Malcolm X wore a heavy black veil at the services.

Police admitted mourners to the church one by one. High-ranking members among Malcolm's followers stood alongside police at the church door, looking for possible troublemakers.

Policemen searched handbags of women, seeking any weapons.

Most of the mourners in the 1,700-person capacity church were Negroes, the majority women. There were some whites present.

As the service began, it was announced over loudspeakers that the church was full to capacity and that nobody else would be admitted. The services were carried on loud speakers so those outside could hear.

The body of Malcolm had been brought from a funeral home to the church in the early morning hours with an escort of a dozen police cars.

Malcolm was shot to death six days ago as he started to address a rally of his followers. The shooting was followed by the fire-bomb destruction of a Harlem mosque of the Black Muslim movement, from which Malcolm had defected. Later there was a series of telephoned threats that the funeral church would be bombed.

The tense situation also led to heavy police protection for Elijah Muhammad, Black Muslim leader attending a convention of his group in Chicago.

Blasts Handling Of Baker Case

Curtis Protests Senate Refusal To Quiz Jenkins

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a blast at the handling of the Bobby Baker investigation, Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., has protested the Senate Rules Committee's refusal to question former White House aide Walter Jenkins about President Johnson's "broadcasting empire."

Curtis, top Republican on the committee, also said he wants to ask Jenkins if any companies in which he or the Johnson family were interested ever owned land in or near Washington's Dulles Airport, the New Orleans Michoud Space Center or the Clear Lake Space Center near Houston.

In addition to these and other questions about the President, Curtis said Jenkins should have been asked how many times he was arrested during his government service and the dates and the places.

Jenkins, Johnson's top assistant for 25 years, resigned at the President's request last October, during the presidential election campaign, after public disclosure Jenkins had been arrested twice on morals charges.

The committee had subpoenaed Jenkins to testify Feb. 4, but submitted written questions to him instead after being told by his physician and two psychiatrists that his health might be endangered if he were compelled to appear.

Curtis made public Friday a list of additional questions he had sent to Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., the committee chairman, with a request they be put to Jenkins. He called all of them relevant to the Baker investigation.

The Nebraskan said in a statement his request was "totally ignored." Jordan declined comment.

Warning Put To 'Avengers' Of Malcolm X

Muhammed Says 'We Will Fight You If You Fight Us'

CHICAGO (AP) — Elijah Muhammad, leader of the militant anti-white Black Muslims, has laid down a warning to any would-be avengers of Malcolm X: "We will fight you if you fight us."

Threats to Elijah Muhammad's life have been numerous since the slaying in New York Sunday of Malcolm X, who split with the Muslims last year and formed the Organization of Afro-American Unity, a rival Muslim group.

"They are coming to kill me," the small, wiry 67-year-old Muhammad told his assembled followers, who half-filled the 7,500 seats in the coliseum.

"We are not going to stand and keep silent and see hypocrites going around bombing places," Muhammad vowed, alluding to the destruction by explosion and fire of a Muslim mosque early Tuesday in New York's Harlem.

"If police departments cannot put a stop to it, we can put a stop to it," Muhammad said.

The spotlight at the convention today may be on boxing, Muhammad Ali, better known as Cassius Clay, the world's heavyweight champion, holds an exhibition match with Cody Jones. Elijah Muhammad plans to attend.

Security was tight at the convention. Fifty Chicago policemen combed the coliseum for bombs before the meeting opened.

Milder Temperature Slated For Weekend

Things have quieted down on the weather front after Thursday's severe storm and the cold is beginning to moderate with much milder temperatures due for the weekend.

In fact, the warming trend indicates March may come in like a lamb Monday, as spring is only three weeks away—on the calendar.

Sunday may see a high in the 50's.

Skies will be cloudy but the forecast contains neither rain nor snow. Today's high will go near 40 and tonight's low range of 24 to 34 degrees will be milder than the chilly 17 recorded downtown at 6 this morning.

Winter and Your Septic Tank

Unlike humans, who heat their homes in winter, or even animals, who have hairy bodies to keep them warm, the poor little bacteria in septic tanks and waste disposal systems have no protection against those harsh winter months ahead.

Since a temperature drop of only a few degrees will kill billions of these hard working microbes, the reduced bacteria population becomes incapable of disposing of the waste which enters such systems, resulting in clogged and unsanitary conditions.

These bacteria, mainly the col-on-type, are produced in the human body at a temperature of 98.6° F., and lose their ability to produce their own enzymes for solids liquefaction as the temperature drops, literally starving to death. Quoting from SEWERAGE and SEWAGE TREATMENT: (1)

"Temperature of sludge digestion — the most practical optimum known as the Mesophilic Range, is between 80° F. and 90° F., preferably about 85° F. As the temperature drops, bacterial action diminishes almost in proportion until at about 50° F. it practically ceases."

Naturally, since the temperatures in unheated sewage systems average between 50° F. and 60° F. in winter, it may readily be seen that trouble can be expected.

How Sea-Cal Enzymes Help

Enzymes are not as susceptible to low temperatures as are bacteria, and it has been proven that their liquefying ability continues as low as 35° F. Therefore, SEA-CAL takes over the reduction of the solids, producing food in AVAILABLE form for the reduced bacteria population, enabling them to continue their valuable work, and to produce clear effluents for transmission to drainfields and cesspools.

Since SEA-CAL also contains strains of virile bacteria by the million per gram, fresh populations are added each time a treatment is made.

For only a few pennies per treatment, for the average home system, SEA-CAL insures year-round protection from costly service problems, and unsanitary conditions.

USE SEA-CAL ENZYMES REGULARLY ALL YEAR, INCREASING DOSES IN WINTER.

isolate in the wake of a comprehensive and highly critical report by the Legislative Service Commission, research arm of the Assembly.

Pointing to an "unnecessarily large number of local welfare administrative units," the report criticizes "disorganized financing which bears no relation to relative need or ability to pay; inadequacy of state supervision . . . and the absence of clearly defined and consistent state leadership of welfare programs."

Canary says it is next to impossible to assess the potential cost to counties under the proposed reorganization.

"In making any change like this," he says, "some counties which haven't been paying their share will pay more."

According to Canary, key provisions in the bill he sent to the governor's office would:

ABOLISH city relief agencies and give counties full responsibility for the program.

SHIFT from the state to the counties the administration of the aid for the aged program.

REQUIRE counties to pay up to 10 per cent of the cost of programs for the aged, blind, disabled and dependent children, exclusive of federal participation, and up to 25 per cent of relief costs.

DIVERT all public utility excise taxes to the state's general fund instead of distributing the revenue to counties for poor relief financing.

Canary says the excise tax, which amounts to about $26 million a year statewide, is needed to help the state meet its share of increased welfare costs. The tax revenue now goes to counties according to population and relief expenditures for the previous year.

office June 1. The tellers must report by May 1.

Even before Friday's telegram exchange was announced it was apparent both sides were becoming increasingly impatient to get back to the bargaining tables.

Although the dizzying production pace, spurred by stockpiling, is lining the pockets of worker and company alike, both know it can't go on forever. They want to get back on an even keel.

One steelworker official put it this way: "There hasn't been stockpiling around this area like this since 1959 — the last and longest steel strike. If this goes on and even if the contract is extended beyond May first there's going to be a depressed period when it ends. That means layoffs and serious ones."

The industry problem is different. Said one source: "Every month that goes by the building of additional stockpiles uses facilities that are largely of a standby nature. They are little used facilities and are expensive to put into shape in a boom or bust situation. And they're wearing out."

Pughtown PTA Sets Meeting For Monday

A new project will be discussed at the meeting of the Pughtown Parent-Teacher Association Monday at 8 p. m., and a committee will be selected for nominations for officers for next year.

The children of the fifth and sixth grades, under the direction of Mrs. Martha Scott, will present a program.

The project to be discussed was initiated at a meeting of the Pughtown Executive Board at the school last Monday.

Mrs. Robert Golden is president.

Lisbon School Board To Air Appropriations

LISBON — The Board of Education will act on the 1965 appropriations at its meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 and Supt. Oliver Payne said several other matters await action.

These include salary increments for the coming term, an increase in salary for substitute teachers, hiring of a new biology teacher for the high school and a adoption of the 1965-66 school calendar.

Abandoned Auto Towing Slated

An order to remove all abandoned automobiles along township roads was issued by the Liverpool Township trustees at a meeting Friday night.

Police constables were advised of the action. All such vehicles are to be towed from the township road right-of-ways to permit snow plows to operate properly.

The trustees will meet Wednesday at 3 p. m. with county highway officials at Lisbon to certify the township road mileage.

Roy Bramer of Salineville discussed the sale of a road stripper to the township.

Frank Gray, a trustee, was absent because of illness. The next meeting will be held March 12, according to Paul Cunningham, clerk.

Document

it is giving with men, money and material.

Friday, U.S. military authorities said several hundred more American GI's will be sent to South Viet Nam.

The State Department's case against North Viet Nam was presented before the world amid mounting pressures in several quarters for consideration of negotiations to end the conflict.

The United States would be ready at once to reduce its military involvement if peace could be restored in South Viet Nam, the document said.

But, it added, "the choice now between peace and continued and increasingly destructive conflict is one for the authorities in Hanoi to make."

The last report on the Viet Nam war was issued by the State Department in 1961. Today the department said new evidence of North Viet Nam aggression has accumulated and "the government of the United States believes that evidence should be presented to its own citizens and to the world."

"Military men, technicians, political organizers, propagandists and secret agents have been infiltrating into the republic of Viet Nam from the north in growing numbers."

"The flow of Communist-supplied weapons, particularly those of large caliber, has increased. Communications links with Hanoi are extensive. Despite the heavy casualties of three years of fighting, the hard core Viet Cong force is considerably larger now than it was at the end of 1961."

The report gave these particulars:

Manpower — hard-core Viet Cong strength now is estimated at more than 32,000 compared to less than 20,000 in 1961. It has five regimental headquarters, 50 battalions and an estimated 139 companies. Supporting the

LeRoy Rouse

LISBON — LeRoy Rouse, 332 W. Maple St., died this morning at 1:30 at Salem City Hospital, where he had been a patient for a week. He had been in failing health for several years. He was 65.

Born Feb. 10, 1900, in Empire, to Milton Rouse and Etta Kiggins Rouse, he came to Lisbon in 1919. He worked at the Sekely Industrial Tool & Manufacturing Co. of Salem until retiring in 1960 due to poor health.

He was married to Lillian Perkins Dec. 30, 1922, and she survives at the home.

Other survivors include three daughters, Mrs. James Murphy of Salem, Mrs. Harold A. Smith of Washingtonville and Mrs. James Wolthius of Utica, Mich.; three sons, LeRoy Rouse Jr., of Columbiana, Dale Rouse of Chicago and Kent Rouse of San Jose, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. Helen Brownfield, Mrs. May Mitchel and Mrs. Betty Chamberlain, and a brother, Edgar Rouse, all of Lisbon, and 17 grandchildren.

The Eells - Leggett Funeral Home is arranging services.

main force units are an estimated 60,000 to 80,000 part time guerrillas who receive only half pay which means they must work at least part of the time to scratch out a living.

Weapons — an increasing number of weapons from outside Communist sources have been seized in the south including 57mm and 75mm recoilless rifles, dual purpose machine guns, rocket launchers, large mortars and anti-tank mines.

A new family of Chinese Communist-manufactured weapons appeared recently in Viet Cong hands. Included are semi-automatic carbines, light machine guns and assault rifles. Chinese Communist antitank grenade launchers and ammunition made in China also have been captured. And it is estimated the Viet Cong have at least 130 81mm mortars and 300 60mm mortars.

The report cited the discovery Feb. 16 of a Chinese Communist 100-ton cargo ship camouflaged just offshore, along the coast of Phu Yen Province in South Viet Nam. Captured after a bitter fight with the Viet Cong, the ship was found to contain a cargo of thousands of weapons and more than 1 million rounds of small arms ammunition.

"Almost all were of Communist origin, largely from Communist China and Czechoslovakia, as well as North Viet Nam," the report said. "At least 100 tons of military supplies were discovered near the ship."

Documents found on the ship and on the bodies of several Viet Cong aboard, identified the vessel as having come from North Viet Nam.

"The incident underlined in the most dramatic form that Hanoi is behind the continuing campaign of aggression aimed at conquering South Viet Nam," the report said.

Terrorism — in 1964, the report said, 436 South Viet Nam hamlet chiefs and other government officials were killed by the Viet Cong and 1,131 were kidnapped. More than 1,350 civilians were killed in bombings and other acts of sabotage and at least 8,400 civilians were kidnapped by the Viet Cong.

A detailed examination was given of the political direction and control of the Viet Cong by the Communist party of North Viet Nam headed by Ho Chi Minh.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Friday the United States will send additional military forces to South Viet Nam.

Pentagon sources said the increase would total no more than 800. The United States now has about 23,500 troops in South Viet Nam.

In Moscow, Russian Premier Alexei N. Kosygin called for an end to U.S. reprisal raids on North Viet Nam as a condition for peace talks and repeated demands that the United States withdraw completely from South Viet Nam.

Administration strategists in Washington viewed the Kosygin speech, a report on his 11-day visit to Southeast Asia, as offering nothing new from past Soviet statements.

The white paper described North Viet Nam's intelligence system, through a Central Research Agency — CRA — as one of the most extensive operations of its kind in the world. It was said to operate under the close personal scrutiny of Ho Chi Minh.

Referring to the series of coups in South Viet Nam since November, 1963, the report said these distractions gave the Viet Cong "an invaluable opportunity and they took advantage of it" to consolidate their hold over some areas, enlarge military and political apparatus by increased infiltration and exploit demonstrations in Saigon and elsewhere.

Why doesn't Mr. Wheatley and the Executive board fulfill their duties of office, such as insisting the Contract be enforced in its entirety?

Why don't they take care of all grievances promptly, instead of taking weeks and months to process? There is a 72 hour time limit in the agreement for processing grievances, but it is completely ignored.

Why did Mr. Wheatley refuse to allow a group of Local Unions of the I.B.O.P. to use the 6th St. building?

Could it be, he and the Executive board don't want these meetings to take place?

Are they afraid the rank and file members will be told the truth about how our International is being operated?

Could it be they don't want the Union Members to vote in the tri-state area?

Did Mr. Wheatley and the Executive board put on those extra organizers the last fiscal year as a reward for fighting for legislation the executive board wanted passed at the convention at Las Vegas?

Why were three extra organizers put on when there were three regulars, and ten Vice Presidents to do what little organizing there was done?

It is hard to understand why some Union members can be so blind to what has happened right under their noses, and the "To Hell with You" attitude adopted by Mr. Wheatley and the board towards the members in this area. These very same members will defend Mr. Wheatley and the board to the last ditch, even tho he don't care two hoots about them.

Everyone should know what a song and dance we get when any of us go out to Headquarters on Rt. 7. Most of the time their answers to our questions and problems are, "I will have to talk to Mr. Wheatley." Don't any of them know the answers? They should be able to help and advise and interpret the contract without hollering for their great White Father.

Or doesn't Mr. Wheatley allow them to think for themselves? Or is he afraid they will pull a boo-boo and give you the wrong answers, which is entirely possible.

Why does Mr. Wheatley adopt the attitude he does, when he is opposed in any way?

Could it be he is afraid of opposition? Or is he at the stage that he imagines he is all powerful, that he can rule like a dictator? That he and his Associates on the Executive Board can interpret the Constitution to suit their whims and interests?

Where did Mr. Wheatley and Mr. Clawges get the authority to ignore the rights of the wage contract committee of Local 231 Toronto, Canada, and sign a contract that was rejected by the Contract Committee? It was just another of his "To hell with you" ideas. In other words, I am running this show, I am the King.

Anyone who has been a delegate to a Convention will tell you of some of Mr. Wheatley's favorite gag lines are "I Love You All," "I Work For You," "You Are My Bosses," "I am At Your Command." And tries to impress upon them, that he is our humble servant. But it is very doubtful if there is any humility in Mr. Wheatley's make up. On the contrary, one trait he has shown is the utter disregard of the rights of the members in this area.

Could it be that Mr. Wheatley has placed himself above the rank and file members, and is trying to emulate Mr. Meany, Mr. Ruether, Mr. McDonald and other great Labor Leaders of our day?

To accomplish that, he has to learn to respect the members, and also earn their respect for him. That is one of the many phases he has failed in, so completely.

Now is the time to inject new blood and new life into our Union. To put new officers on the Executive board, who will work and fight for the members all the time, and place the welfare of the union and its members above everything else.

We must defeat those members of the board who place their own selfish desires and whims ahead of their duty to the Union and its members.

Think this over very carefully. Brother and Sister pot-ers. Let's clean house at Headquarters, and put our union back on the respectable level it enjoyed at one time.

World Understanding Seen Challenge Facing Lions Club

The greatest challenge facing Lionism is to create better understanding among peoples, Walter Jordan of Chester, governor of West Virginia District 29-L, told the East Liverpool club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

Speaking on "The Challenge of Lionism", Jordan said Lionism is credited with being the "best tool outside the church" for creating better understanding.

"When we become aware of the challenges, then we realize our responsibilities as Lions," the Chester man said.

Another challenge to Lions' members is to provide humanitarian service, he pointed out, citing the organization's sight-saving work.

"We should be proud of the organization because of the service it performs on the international, national and local levels."

Jordan's district embraces 44 clubs in 15 counties.

He was introduced by George McCullough, international counselor. The Rev. C. E. Traylor was program chairman.

Rev. Traylor invited club members to attend a "Southern dinner" which he and his wife will serve to men of the First Church of Christ Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Richard C. Martin, president, announced a rehearsal for the minstrel show March 13 will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. at the hotel.

The Board of Directors will meet Monday at 8 p.m. at the Potters Savings & Loan Co. annex. End men in the minstrel will rehearse following the board meeting, with Ernest Lowe, program chairman, in charge.

gious and labor organizations.

The military operation was one of two launched a day after the Soviet Union warned that the Vietnamese conflict could "transcend its original boundaries."

The other strike was part of a coordinated drive in several parts of Binh Dinh Province, 270 miles northeast of Saigon, where the Viet Cong has made strong inroads lately. Communist activity throughout the country was light during the past two days in the wake of U.S. air strikes against the guerrillas.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin in a television broadcast Friday demanded that the United States stop retaliatory air strikes against North Viet Nam to create conditions for a negotiated settlement in Southeast Asia.

He said if "aggressive actions" continue, the conflict "will inevitably transcend its original boundaries."

Kosygin also repeated Soviet demands that the United States withdraw its troops and weapons from South Viet Nam.

In Washington, the State Department made public documented charges that North Viet Nam is pursuing a deliberate campaign of concealed aggression "as real as that of an invading army" against South Viet Nam.

In a 14,000-word "white paper" the State Department said if peace could be restored in South Viet Nam, the United States would be ready at once to reduce its military involvement. But it added that the United States "will not abandon friends who want to remain free."

U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Friday the United States will send additional military forces to the war-torn country. He did not specify how many, but Pentagon sources said about 800 were involved. The United States now has about 23,500 troops in South Viet Nam.

Woman's Pocketbook Containing $14 Taken

A Glenmoor area woman told police Friday her pocketbook containing $14 was stolen from a shopping cart while she was in the Bradshaw Ave. market of Loblaw, Inc.

Mrs. Douglas Bourne of Air Beacon Rd. reported the sneak thief removed the purse about 11:50 a. m. She said it contained a wallet in which she was carrying the money and some miscellaneous papers, including her driver's license.

Ohio's General Fund Ahead $11.8 Million

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state's General Revenue Fund is $11.8 million ahead of the last fiscal year, State Auditor Chester W. Goble says.

Reporting Friday on February figures, Goble said sales tax collections are up $11.5 million alone in the fiscal year which began last July 1. The fund total for the current fiscal year at the end of eight months exceeds $313 million, he said.

Forest Fire Wardens Set

The district office of the Ohio Division of Forestry at New Philadelphia announced today that the spring forest fire season begins on March 1 and continues through May.

During these months the carpet of dead leaves and grass is readily ignited from a spark and all residents are urged to use extreme caution with fire.

Some townships of Columbiana County are included in the organized forest fire protection area. In these townships, a permit is required for kindling any fire in the open outside of incorporated towns and villages during the months of March, April and May. Permits may be obtained without cost from the local forest fire wardens.

Townships included in the organized forest fire protection area and the local wardens for each are:

Delinquent Charged In Schoolmate Death

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A 17-year-old Garfield High School student has been charged with pointing and discharging a firearm without intent to injure as the result of schoolmate's death Thursday.

The charge was filed Friday against Darrell Bowling after he was declared to be a delinquent.

Dr. Garret J. Boone, Butler County coroner, said Bowling and three other youths were playing cards at a private home when Bowling picked up a .45 caliber revolver. The weapon went off, fatally wounding David Spence, 18, one of the players, Boone said.

Man Driving Suffers Fatal Heart Attack

He was Ben Zingale, 47, owner of the Brooklyn Cleaners in Parma Heights for the last three years.

on relief which have an annual income exceeding $2,000.

He planned to present an amendment today to provide federal funds in behalf of these youngsters.

But the chairman, Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., predicted committee approval of the administration formula today. This would pave the way for debate and a vote by the full House.

During its session Friday, the committee approved three sections of the bill. These would:

—Authorize $100 million to establish supplementary education centers that provide both public and private school children with services not available under regular school programs.

—Authorize $45 million to train personnel for work on new education techniques and to build regional research centers.

—Authorize $25 million for grants to help state departments of education map long-range programs.

Earlier, the committee had okayed a $100 million proposal for the purchase of textbooks and library books to be used by children in public and private schools.

The latter provision, plus the one setting up supplementary education centers, could provide aid for parochial school students. Approval of the provisions without any real opposition in the committee was taken as a sign that the church-state controversy may be quieting. It has blocked school aid legislation for years.

Rep. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., tried to alter the supplementary education center plan. His aim was to pull the states more deeply into the program, and his action was not based on the bill's parochial overtones.

As the plan now is drawn, Goodell argues that the centers could become a separate federal-local school system.

Jaycees from a CSF program begun in Massachusetts.

The primary function of the new Ohio foundation is to provide help for those who don't quite measure up to the level of top high school students who have little trouble finding scholarships to help pay their college expenses, Longworth said.

Discussing the statewide plan with a group of businessmen the other day, Rhodes had high praise for the East Liverpool foundation.

"We've borrowed parts of their program in forming the statewide foundation," he said. "They pioneered in this field and their program is one of the finest anywhere."

Students participating in the state plan would receive financial assistance to attend schools of their choice after providing proof of admission. They would repay later if able.

Rhodes said the theory is that if students are aided by their own communities they will be more apt to return after receiving their college diplomas. Too often the college graduate shuns his home town, he explained, with the result that some areas are experiencing a steady decline in talent.

Midland Safe Basks Thieves

Futile attempts were made to break into a safe in the Midland High School principal's office during the night, according to Edgar Richards, superintendent.

He said the intruders tried to enter the small safe in the office of William Walters, principal, with tools taken from the shop rooms.

Damage to the safe was minor, he said, as the tools were too light for such a job. The burglars apparently were after funds received by the school from the sale of tickets to the basketball tournament in Pittsburgh tonight.

Midland police and county detectives were making a survey this morning, but apparently nothing of value was taken, with damage confined to a couple of windows and drawers of several desks which were rifled. They entered through a small basement window.

Discovery of the entry was made by maintenance men when they arrived at the school about 7 a. m.

Driver, Passenger On Bus Injured

Two persons were injured when a City Transit Co. bus was struck in the rear by a car at 14th and Main Sts., Wellsville, Friday at 12:30 p. m.

The bus, driven by Joseph Galbreath, 27, of Guy Rd., Rogers R. D. 1, hit by the car driven by Charles McKenzie of Wellsville R. D. 1, police said.

The bus had pulled to the curb to pickup a passenger. Mrs. Mae Belle Carter, 58, of 203 14th St., Wellsville, started to get on just as the accident happened. The impact knocked her to the ground. She was taken to City Hospital with a possible back injury and sent to her physician's office.

Galbreath also was examined at the hospital. He said he was thrown forward and out of the driver's seat by the impact.

McKenzie told police he was unable to stop because of the slippery condition of the street.

City's New Grader Snaps Blade's Arms

A new $11,000 grader which the street department received Monday was sidelined Friday afternoon when both arms supporting the blade snapped while the unit was scraping snow and ice from city streets.

The heavy-duty Gallion grader had worked all Thursday night and until mid-afternoon yesterday removing the accumulated snow and ice, city officials said.

A company representative was being contacted and arrangements were being made to borrow a grader if needed.

Young Driver Injured When His Car Ditches

Richard Leonard Whittington, 18, of the Calcutta-Smiths Ferry Rd. suffered body bruises and a neck injury when he wrecked his car at 1:15 a. m. today on Route 7 just over a mile south of Rogers, according to the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

Officers said Whittington was headed south when he went off the right side of the highway and into a deep ditch. His car was damaged extensively. Whittington was cited for speed in excess of road and weather conditions.

In Unity There Is Discord

It is uncertain whether enough Communist delegations will show up in Moscow to hold the "unity conference" scheduled next week. But it is a certainty the delegates who do show up will try to cut one another to pieces.

Their meeting will be a preview of the full-dress Communist conference which has been tentatively scheduled later in the year. This one, if it's ever convened, might shatter forever the myth of Communist compatibility.

The shattering of the myth is overdue. It has been a long time since Marshal Tito manifested the independence of Yugoslavia after World War II. It soon will have been five years since Russia pulled out its technical advisers and specialists from Red China.

There is no compatibility among humans who call themselves Communists and are in fact nothing but authoritarians with a passion for power.

COMMUNISTS have nurtured the myth of unity as part of their ideological propaganda. They quarrel among themselves as angrily as the advocates of popular sovereignty and human freedom.

The latter make no pretense to unity. They cannot claim to be one-minded, because the evidence is to the contrary.

The chasm between their spokesmen always is as wide and deep as the differences between President de Gaulle of France and, in the current instance, President Johnson of the United States.

Yet, in the long view, advocates of the dignity of the individual and opponents of the absolute authority of the state have achieved the only real unity there can be in human affairs. They share a common purpose — the furtherance of human freedom.

Differences Of Opinion

Californians will be sadder, wiser and not as amused as they are now before the statewide argument about dividing their state simmers down.

But all things considered, even though the argument seems to have begun as a kind of grim joke and has been continuing in an atmosphere of hot rage, Californians have much to learn from debating the idea of a split state.

There isn't a state in the Union, unless it's Rhode Island, that hasn't had reason to muse about drawing a line between its quarrelling factions. Ohio has its north-south dichotomy. Illinois has its Chicago-downstate split. Pennsylvania is divided east and west. New York is split between upstate and downstate. The pattern is universal.

It is always tempting to think how easy it would be to get along without the other half. California's temptation is stronger than most. It is divided not only between north and south, but between a San Francisco attitude and a Los Angeles attitude; between the sub-tropic climate of South-

THIS HAPPENS TO BE the only long-range common purpose of all mankind. Authoritarianism always will be in direct conflict with human nature itself. It is intolerable to human beings. Eventually, they rebel.

Ultimately, the movement to suppress human freedom and set aside the dignity of man will be shattered on the unyielding characteristics of human nature. Call it Communism or some other name, authoritarian control of human beings is contrary to their nature.

Authoritarians, themselves, ultimately fall to quarrelling because they cannot accept domination. Stalin's dream of absolute dictatorship over all so-called Communists never can come true.

A Healthy Sign

Because of a militant opposition, things have been rather lively locally in the primary election campaign of the International Brotherhood of Operative Pottery.

Nominees will be selected for top offices when union members go to the polls Tuesday across the U.S. and in Canada. The general election will be in May.

Some rather strong charges have been hurled as four candidates seek to unseat the incumbent president, E. L. Wheatley. Whether the charges are true or whether they are false is up to the members of the various locals to decide in their own minds by the democratic use of the ballot box.

But regardless of the outcome, the interest in the administration of the IBOP can be regarded as a healthy sign.

A loyal opposition serves a vital purpose be it in a pottery union, a steelworkers' union or any other union. — or any organization, for that matter, including the government of the United States.

ern California and the Temperate Zone climate of the northern area; between wild extremism and glossy sophistication.

The fight has been raging in California and all other states with marked differences for generations. And in actual truth, this is the way it is going to be ad infinitum. This is the way it should be.

States are not going to be split to accommodate irreconcilable factions. If they started it, there would be irreconcilable factions within each new separate entity and so on until it would be like one of those Chinese boxes with a box inside a box inside and box inside a box inside a box.

That is, in fact, the way it is now. It's called the two-party system. Part of it applies to political parties. The rest applies to human nature.

Wherever two or more Americans are gathered together, there probably will be a difference of opinion. Make it 2,000 or more, and it's certain there will be a difference of opinion.

Let's Get At The Truth

We wish the economic research division of the State Development Department would find something better to do than issue statements about the population growth of Ohio while announcing that many of Ohio's major cities are losing population. How silly can you get?

The cities losing population in Ohio are unreal figments of legal fantasy artificially bound up inside outdated corporation limits.

The urban areas which have supplanted old-time municipal corporations are the scene of the population explosion. These areas are what people mean when they refer to cities, just as they mean all of London when they refer to London — not that tiny part of London which comprises only 675 acres (the Old City) compared with greater London's 440,000 acres.

The State Development Department is supposed to tell attractive truths about Ohio, and it is gross misrepresentation to talk about population declines in Ohio cities.

Population is declining only in central sections of municipal corporations — the nuclei of the vast urban market areas growing by leaps and bounds throughout the state.

If the research division isn't interested in getting at the truth of this matter, there must be something more useful it could do with its time.

Tactical Talking

Like 190 million other Yankee Doodlers, I want to think my great good government is now engaged in "tactical talking."

I want to think it is doing what I have done when I figure I could talk my way out of trouble by pretending to be braver than I felt.

But while I am thinking this, wishfully, I am beginning to have doubts.

Some of the things currently going on suggest that my great good government is doing what great good governments always are in danger of doing.

It is living up to its image as a great good government and proving, by golly, that it isn't afraid of anybody, by golly — and you can stuff that in your pipe and smoke it.

IT IS INCHING into a mental cul-de-sac, propelled by the wind from its own words and political gusts from assorted sources. When it has inched far enough, circumstances will slam the door and there we Yankee Doodlers will be again — in another war that we didn't want. It's a chilling prospect.

But this is the way such things can happen. The United States must not show fear, because if the other side sees one quiver of Uncle Sam's chin-whiskers it will close in for the kill.

In this game of diplomatic chicken that our peerless leaders play at a time like this, everything is supposed to depend on who sticks out his chin farthest and tustest. This is the conventional pattern of the game.

It depends, though, on whether you want to play diplomatic chicken in the first place.

By Truman Twill

It also depends on whether, if you undertake to play, you are willing to play to win.

The United States got into a game of diplomatic chicken in Korea some years back, did not play to win and came out on the short end. To this day it is taking the living time of thousands of American citizens and the earning power of millions of U.S. producers to pay the carrying costs of a Korean stalemate.

IF THIS COUNTRY wound up on the water-surrounded end of another Asian peninsula after being forced to accept a truce in Korea, that would be more face than any first-rate power could afford to lose in Asia in one generation.

Yet this is precisely what the government is in danger of doing with its "tactical talking" about Viet Nam. It is talking itself into a corner.

It is doing this not only at the risk of being unable to extricate itself from a place unsuitable for fighting but at the risk of mixing up the minds of its citizens so hopelessly they would be unable to put their backs into a war effort — even a minimal one.

Countries like the United States, Britain and France, with governments responsible to the masses of the people, never deliberately go to war. They let themselves be pushed into war by countries that want to fight — that have everything to gain and nothing to lose by fighting.

Precarious Podiums

Benefits For The Veterans

By Victor Wilson

WASHINGTON — In 1636, the ruling fathers of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Mass., decided that any citizen-soldier, permanently injured while defending the colony, should be "suitably maintained for the rest of his lifetime."

So far as known, this was the first time on the American continent that an organized society undertook to compensate or pension its militia protectors.

What this cost the Pilgrims is lost to history.

But the idea grew like America itself. In time it was expanded to cover peacetime armed forces service, and to provide a myriad of other benefits.

These ranged from guaranteed home mortgages to burial flags for veterans, plus help for their wives, widows, children and other dependents.

IN 1964, some 3 centuries later, America's annual bill for all this came to $5.5 billion. For fiscal 1966 (July 1965 to the following June 30), the President has asked Congress for $5.6 billion for veterans' benefits. He's not only likely to get that sum, but Congress, acutely aware that vets and their dependents vote, may even enlarge the pie.

Now or eventually eligible for a slice of this or future funds, are some 22.1 million veterans with service periods extending from the last of the West's Indian Wars to the current Cold War.

Add these veterans' eligible dependents, and about 81 million Americans eventually may qualify for some federal money or other help.

IS THERE any end in sight for such outlays? Not, according to the Veterans Administration, which handles these matters for the government, until (a) the last dependent of the last veteran has died, and (b) so long as American military personnel fight or serve anywhere in the world.

In other words, no end is in sight, though with luck (world peace) and the passage of time (and dependents), expenditures could drop.

Of course Congress, the source of all this largesse, may very well in the future, under veterans' voting pressure, provide higher pensions, more dependents' benefits and even dream up new ones.

The extent of this pressure on Congress came sharply into focus recently when the VA, with the President's approval, announced it would close 11 veterans hospitals, four domiciliary (homes) and merge 17 regional VA offices.

IT SAID it hoped to save some $23 million annually while providing better service in more up-to-date facilities.

An uproar (echoing back-home sentiment) shook Capitol Hill. Both House and Senate added riders to a $1.8 million farm appropriation bill prohibiting closures.

Johnson called this an encroachment on his executive authority. (The Veterans Administration was set up by executive order in 1930). The quarrel will be papered over, but the bitterness between Congress and White House is apt to remain.

It's difficult for anyone, legislator or citizen, to visualize or even grasp the VA's operations, though some figures may give a rough idea.

OF THE PRESIDENT'S proposed annual budget totaling $99.7 billion, veterans' affairs take 4 cents of every tax dollar, matching the amount spent on space programs.

The huge agriculture program takes only 3 cents per tax dollar. Interest on the national debt consumes 7 cents, while defense swallows 40 cents on the dollar annually.

The VA operates 168 hospitals (including those it would close), has authorization to build 3 new ones, enlarge 2 others; runs 214 outpatient clinics, 18 domiciliary and 2 restoration centers in 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Philippines.

Last year its medical facilities (43,900 personnel) handled 767,035 veteran-patients (up 25,600 over 1963); had 6.2 million veteran visits to clinics and hospitals for treatment (up from 5.9 the year before).

IT PAID monthly pensions ($1,000 to $3,000 annually, depending on marital status and family) to 1.2 million veterans; paid compensation for service-connected disabilities ($20 to $250 monthly) to 1.8 million, and gave financial assistance to hundreds of thousands of depend-

The Dangers In Viet

By David Lawrence

U.S. Must Continue To Stand Tall

Barry Goldwater may not have gotten much comfort out of the last election, but he is beginning now to get some consolation.

While he did not originate the present military policy of the United States in Viet Nam, he certainly was berated as "trigger happy" David Lawrence during the campaign for having advocated a bombing offensive in Viet Nam.

Now the United States not only is retaliating against the attacks on South Viet Nam but is actually carrying on its own military operations with American jet bombers and inflicting heavy losses on the Communists. Hitherto, American forces have operated only in conjunction with the South Vietnamese units, but the new military moves are being made solely by U.S. airmen.

These developments are normal and logical in a military sense, and would have come about whether or not the United States had any political campaign last year for the Viet Nam war has been inefficiently managed because the South Vietnamese themselves are torn apart with internal friction.

It has become the duty of the American forces, therefore, to operate independently, though the over-all purpose, of course, still is to assist the South Viet Nam government.

THESE CHANGES in military policy were inevitable. The United States could not be left in the position of merely waiting for the enemy's attacks, responding to them and then abandoning any further moves.

Now that the American government has decided to go ahead and take the initiative in attacks against the North Vietnamese, the whole war in South Viet Nam is really different in character.

Perhaps this is one of the reasons why the Western European powers have been growing apprehensive that the Viet Nam war might turn into a major conflict, and are seeking to get peace negotiations started. It's apparent that there is a willingness on both sides to stop the fighting but the United States is not ready to allow a cessation of military operations to be construed as a sign of weakness, if not surrender.

President Johnson is watching the public reaction. He is trying to find what is called a "consensus." It would be a mistake to assume that his military advisers are also waiting to see what popular trends are. It's their duty to tell the President what has to be done militarily.

DEATHS in 1964 totaled around 150,000.

Of the nation's 22.1 million veterans, 7 out of 10 are from World War II; 1 in 10 served in World War I; 1 in 5 is a Korean War veteran; 1 in 1,000 served in the Spanish-American War (average age 86.1 years).

Only 18 veterans of the last Indian Wars were alive as 1964 closed (93.9-year average age).

All Civil War veterans were gone, though some widows of late, late marriages were still on payment rolls.

Mr. Justice Frankfurter

By Raymond Moley

In the early years of World War II, Richard Gardiner Casey, Australian minister to the United States, resigned to enter the British Cabinet under Churchill.

This casual step from one nation to another was an uncommon matter, even in such an unusual war. Anyhow, Casey's deserted superior, the prime minister of Australia, thought so and protested. Casey said in his reply that he acted on the advice of Felix Frankfurter and Harry Hopkins.

This interference in the relations of two foreign states by Hopkins might have passed unnoticed, for Hopkins in those days was one of the half dozen people who were running the war. But the participation of a justice of the Supreme Court in this affair was astonishing.

The estimable prime minister from Down Under, however, little knew of the proven virtuosity over many years of Felix Frankfurter in job placement.

PERHAPS there will be learned articles in the law journals on Mr. Justice Frankfurter's juridical philosophy during his 25 years on the high court.

On that subject, I believe the evidence is unclear. But the more enduring fame of Frankfurter will rest upon his amazing capacity for finding jobs for people.

No single individual—not even that eminent dispenser of patronage, James A. Farley—recruited so many for so many official positions in the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

I'm convinced that Frankfurter served as the decisive factor in the selection by Roosevelt of Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war in 1940.

Frankfurter was in a real sense the protege of Stimson, for his first job after graduating from the Harvard Law School tarily to protect the 24,000 American troops now in South Viet Nam. It's their duty also to propose such military operations as will convince the enemy that no longer are provocative attacks going to be accepted in a routine fashion and bring only a perfunctory reprisal.

THE UNITED STATES is truly in the middle of a war: in one sense, on the side of the South Viet Nam government. In another sense, it is directly confronting Communist guerrillas financed and controlled by Red Chinese as well as Soviet military advisers.

The war in South Viet Nam, therefore, is a war of defense against aggressions instigated by Red China and the Soviet Union.

The sooner it is recognized as a major confrontation, the more likely it is that all the world powers which have taken an interest in obtaining a peaceful settlement will intensify their efforts to bring about an end to the aggressions committed by the Communist regimes.

President Johnson has been urged to make clear America's purposes, and he doubtless has done this in his talks through diplomatic channels. But more important at the moment is that nothing shall be done by the United States which can be construed as a yielding to the Communists.

Such a step would be interpreted as a sign of cravenness, and this could magnify America's problems in all countries where the Communists are carrying on their insidious infiltrations.

Mr. Johnson is rightly sensitive to public opinion but there comes a time when there must be leadership in policies that may for the moment seem unpopular. It's the policy that succeeds in the long run that's important and not just what is said from day to day as the situation evolves from one serious stage to another.

AMERICAN PUBLIC opinion undoubtedly is opposed to extending war anywhere but it can be mobilized in behalf of the President's policy once the people thoroughly understand that the danger of a bigger war is not far away, and that any willingness to settle a small war in an unsatisfactory manner means only a brief period of peace and then an outbreak of perhaps even larger military operations.

The important thing at the moment is to show that America is in earnest, that it is resolute, and that it will not back away from its desire to protect small nations in any part of the world where Communist imperialism tries to extend its policies of aggression.

was in the office of Stimson, who in 1906 was U.S. district attorney in New York.

WHEN STIMSON left that office to run unsuccessfully for governor of New York and was appointed secretary of war by President Taft, he took his favorite assistant with him into the War Department.

From the contacts made there, Frankfurter was able to play a part in the Wilson administration, where he served as a labor mediator on time taken off from his professional duties in the Harvard Law School.

When Hoover became President, Stimson was secretary of state, and the old relationship was revived. Through Stimson, Frankfurter placed many of his friends in the Hoover departments, especially in State.

Meanwhile, he supplied Justices Holmes and Brandeis with a long succession of young law assistants, many of whom became famous later.

FRANKFURTER's energies extended far beyond the government. He was a factor in the appointments of many people to professorships in law schools. And I know of instances in which he was effective in the selection of newspaper editors.

Extension Given On City Employee Insurance Plans

To allow further time for study of bids received Tuesday, Associated Hospital Services, Inc., of Youngstown Friday afternoon granted Mayor Merrill D. Hall a 30-day extension in contracts for hospital and surgical insurance for city employees that were scheduled to expire Sunday.

The coverage now will continue until April 1, allowing time for the administration to analyze complicated proposals from several companies. The new contract was to have gone into effect Monday.

The mayor said he pointed out to the firm that a quick decision could not be made on the bids because of the illness of both Safety - Service Director Robert E. Vordrey and Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper. Vordrey and Hall comprise the Board of Control, which will award the contract, and Cooper is its legal adviser.

Associated Hospital Services has furnished the hospital and surgical coverage under the Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans since it was inaugurated about two years ago.

City employees have scheduled a mass meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m. at Central Fire Station to discuss the hospitalization program and weigh the advantages of the offers.

Living Costs Rose Slightly In January

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose one-tenth of one percent in January largely because of higher costs for housing, gasoline, and automobile insurance, the Labor Department reported.

The increase was the fifth monthly rise in a row. It brought the consumer price index to 108.9 per cent of the 1957-59 average.

About 950,000 workers in the auto, farm equipment and aerospace industries will receive a wage increase of one cent an hour under union contracts which link pay rates to the price index.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics issued, along with its regular monthly price report, an annual review of price trends which showed that consumer prices climbed 1.3 per cent in 1964.

It mentioned a possibility that heavy stockpiling of steel by industry, as a hedge against a nationwide strike, may for a short period push some segments of industry close to capacity operations.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner for prices, said living costs in February probably have been unchanged from January or perhaps one-tenth of one percent higher. While costs of consumer services and rents apparently are rising, he said, there may be some discounting of new car prices and reductions in utility rates.

Spear Point Find Shows Prehistoric People Here

Discovery In Cornfield At Fredericktown Hailed As Outstanding Piece Of Archaeological Evidence

By HARRY STEWART

The last of the great polar ice caps had started receding northward over the North American continent.

About the time the ice melted back to the Great Lakes area, a small band of prehistoric people wandered into the Ohio Valley and advanced into Columbiana County, according to evidence now uncovered by the Aboriginal Explorers Club.

Discovery of a weapon used by these early people has been heralded as one of the greatest archaeological finds in the Upper Ohio Valley.

As the small band reached this area, the men found the stream swollen by the waters from the melting glacier. They hunted food as they went along, having no possible conception what their actions would mean thousands of years later.

THEY REACHED a tributary and decided to explore along its shores. Game was spotted and the kill made with a spear hurled by a powerful arm.

As the spear was hacked out of the animal, the nomadic hunter whose missile had reached its mark discovered, to his disgust, that the point had broken when it struck bone.

The man dropped the spear head, feeling a great loss because such implements were not easy to make. It was a fluted

Several knives and scrapers also were found at the site. Some are made from unretouched flakes of flint and some have been chipped and formed for use.

Scrapers appear in many forms, most being irregular in shape. The Paleo, such as those who reached this area, used irregular flakes for knives.

Although the story as to how the point was broken or discarded is pure fabrication, the point itself is authentic, having been verified by professionals as having belonged to prehistoric man who roamed in small bands some 10,000 to 15,000 years ago.

Known archaeologists have said that none of the early people excite the imagination like the Paleo tribes of Indians.

THIS PREHISTORIC man did not scavenge or grub for roots. Evidence turned up show he fearlessly roamed the continent, even up to the face of the glaciers. With hand-propelled spear tipped with fluted point, this savage killed the mighty mammoth, the largest animal ever hunted by man.

No excavation of the site is being planned because Dr. Dragoo said any evidence of cultural remains would have been destroyed by the tilling of the land. But he emphasized that all the artifacts found should be kept together for future study and reference.

There are six time periods dealing with Indians in this area. The Paleo is the oldest. The next deals with Archaic man, dating back 3,000 to 1,000 B. C. These Indians were small to average in stature and lived by hunting, fishing and gathering roots and berries. They didn't hunt large animals as the Paleo group did.

The remains of the Archaic group represent the oldest culture available for study in the East Liverpool area.

THE NEXT TIME period is that of the Early Woodland or Adena Indians. They were the first mound builders and are dated from 1,000 to 100 B. C. They had a highly developed, well organized society and were the first agriculturists in this region, introducing the bean, squash, pumpkins and sunflowers. There is no evidence they had corn.

Following this group comes the Middle Woodland or Hopewellian Indians, dating from 100 B. C. to 900 A. D.

They constructed large and impressive geometric earth works in the form of circles, squares, rectangles and octagons. Ft. Ancient, Ft. Miami and Ft. Hill in Ohio are examples of this culture.

The Late Prehistoric or Village Dwellers were next. They included the Chippewa, Mingo, Iroquois and Algonquin Indians. They lived in the Ohio Valley until 1600 when the white man came.

Members of the Aboriginal Explorers Club have several other noted finds to their credit. An entire skeleton of an Indian was found a few years ago along Yellow Creek.

Another noted find was that of a small stone statue believed carried here by a far away tribe.

Club members are continually working on excavation of sites and searching new ones. They keep extensive records and cooperate with state organizations.

The club is made up of a small group of men who are greatly interested in archaeology. They are "amateurs" in the sense they have had no professional training, but the club has received many commendations, citing the fact their work closely resembles that of the professionals.

MEMBERSHIP IS closed to keep the group small and mobile. When one member quits, another is taken in if given a unanimous vote.

point, one with longitudinal flakes removed instead of being notched for jointure to the shaft.

The broken point lay for thousands of years, stirred by movements of the earth, the elements and even by man himself as the soil was tilled.

The fluted point was found recently by Don Mackall on his farm at Fredericktown, where the prehistoric band had traveled along what is now known as Beaver Creek.

It is similar to the one found imbedded in a mastodon bone in Folsom, N. M., in the late thirties, and is direct evidence that the Paleo people traveled into this area, something never known before.

Mackall, a pottery worker, said he came upon the point while walking in the bottomland along the creek, looking for arrowheads.

Not long after he purchased the property 10 years ago, neighbors told him of finding arrowheads in the area, and John F. Mathias of East Liverpool, his brother-in-law and a president of the club, was interested. Mackall also became interested and would inspect the field after plowing or following a rain for possible finds.

Mackall showed his find to Mathias who exhibited it to the club. Tentative identification was made and the members decided to notify professional archaeologists.

Dr. Don Dragoo, curator of the Section of Man at the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh was notified by Harry R. Cline. The meeting was set.

AFTER VIEWING the point, Dr. Dragoo said that a conservative evaluation would place the earliest time of occupancy of the site between 8,000 and 12,000 years ago. The glacier era had started closing about a thousand years before.

The find was recorded as the Mackall Site and now is the oldest known in the county and one of the oldest in the state.

Prior to this, it was believed the people of this time period had not reached so far up the Ohio Valley, although evidences had been found in the Marietta area.

The site, or home of the prehistoric people, is about 15 feet above the present level of Beaver Creek and approximately 300 feet from the point where the West and North forks meet.

These Paleo natives were nomadic hunters and actually had no permanent home. They probably changed camping places with the seasons and followed the migration of the animal herds.

It is believed they never traveled or lived in any concentration of population beyond a small group who hunted together for mutual protection.

The fluted point found is made of a high quality black flint and is about two and three-quarter inches long. The blade shows multiple fluting—a section gouged out to accommodate the spear handle—on both faces, and fine, secondary pressure flaking along the edges and base.

THE POINT shows damage along one side, possible by heat, and the hinge fracture on the tip indicates the blade was damaged by impact.

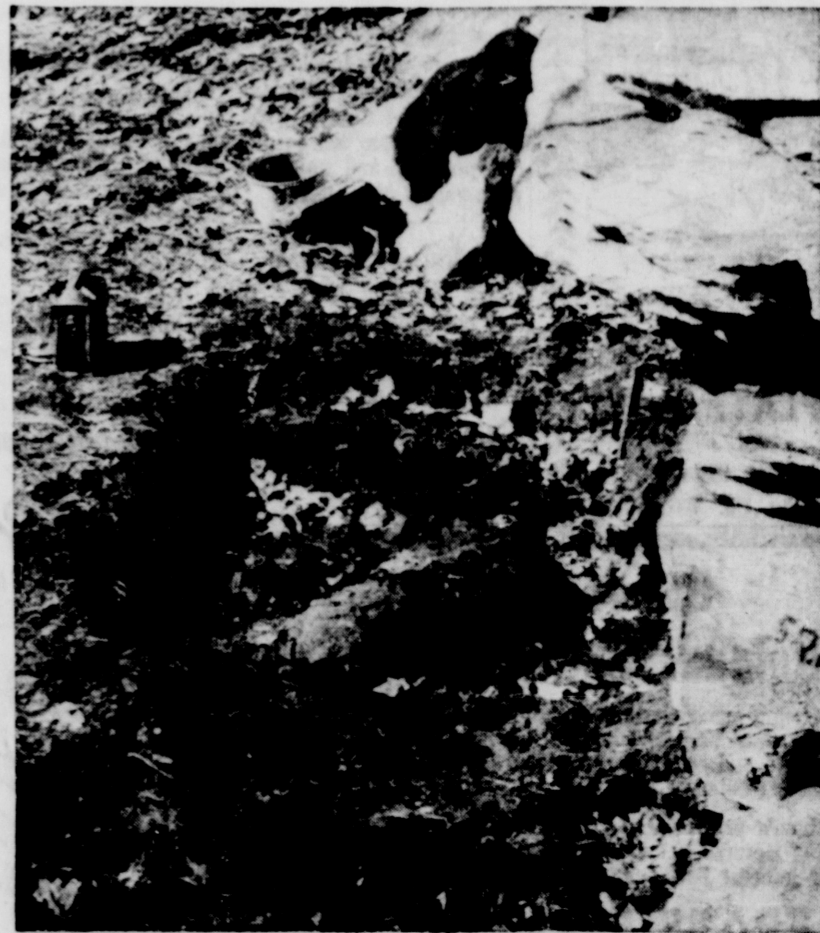

Another type of projectile point found by Mackall is classified by the professionals as a Kirk Serrated blade. It is closely associated with Paleo camps and similar blades are being found on a site being excavated in Pennsylvania. Carbon tests date these blades at 6,000 B. C. The point has saw-like edges.

The Fredericktown spear point is studied by Dick Thompson of Manor Lane, secretary of the Aboriginal Explorers Club.

At work with a trowel on a club excavation project along the Ohio River is James Monte of Wellsville.

Digging in the many rock shelters of the area, such as this one near Beaver Creek, has yielded many archaeological finds.

Prehistoric man shaped his flint tools by chipping off flakes with a piece of wood as shown in this artist's conception in 'The Epic Of Man,' published by Life Magazine in 1961.

Some of the members belong to the Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania Archaeological Societies.

One of the most important "tools of the trade" is a strong back for digging.

Other implements include a bricklayer's trowel, a small paint brush, discarded kitchen utensils, such as knives and small scoops, and cameras. Also used is notebook and small blackboard to chart each find.

Many of the locations excavated are rock shelters found along creeks and other small water ways.

The Indians utilized these overhanging ledges for natural protection.

Club members range far and wide in their search for more artifacts. The past summer, the club was digging at a site near Wheeling, W. Va., and found many burials.

During the winter, when it is too cold to explore and dig, the club holds classes on the purpose of site survey, use of site data, selections of site for excavation, equipment necessary for mapping and types of sites.

The club usually meets every two weeks at the home of members.

PRESENTLY, MEMBERS are conducting a survey of all the known rock shelters, camp sites and villages known in Columbiana County. The information will be used by county authorities in an overall survey being made. These sites can be pinpointed on maps as tourist attractions, especially those along the bank of Beaver Creek.

The club is also conducting a site survey in Yellow Creek Township. Many persons in the township have been contacted. Members urged anyone with information about possible locations of villages to contact them.

They also are interested in viewing private collections of Indian materials. These will be listed so further information can be obtained to complete the study of the natives who wandered through the Ohio River hills and forests.

Anyone with this type of information can contact Bill Smith at LE 2-1763.

Don Mackall of Fredericktown eyes the site on his farm along Beaver Creek where he found the broken spear point of a prehistoric hunter. The find indicates the heretofore unproven presence of Paleo people in this area.

Huge mastodons were slain by primitive men hurling spears with stone tips, similar to the one found at Fredericktown. This sketch appeared in 'Tribes That Slumber,' Lewis-Kneberg, University of Tennessee Press.

The Lighter Side

The old-time newspaperman, going the way of the passenger pigeon and the whooping crane, virtually has vanished from the American scene.

Probably no more versatile and knowledgeable craftsman ever plied his trade in an era when every man stood behind the quality of his work.

The boundary lines between eras are dim and ill-defined at best and who can say today's modern journalism devolved from the lusty, catch-as-catch-can days of earlier generations.

But today's newspaper is a product of the fast-paced age, geared to speed and accuracy with many electronic assists and mechanical shortcuts that would have left an early journalist open-mouthed with wonder.

THE OLD-TIMER came into the business when some of the venerable reporters still were dashing off stories in long hand on foolscap with pen and ink. Then that devilish new invention, the typewriter, invaded the newsroom.

Reporters learned to use it, all right, with a speed that was blinding for a hunt-and-peck artist. But not one in a hundred learned the effeminate "touch system." They preferred to hammer with two or three fingers, their eyes roving constantly between the keyboard and the story that was emerging on the paper.

But there were many fast typists in the ranks of the last generations. It was in the day of the "pony wire," before Teletype machines were moved into newsrooms to grind out stories endlessly and automatically from a central office hundreds of miles away.

The press associations hooked up what today would be termed a "conference call," linking a dozen or more newspapers together on one telephone circuit. Then for 15 minutes or half an hour, a man in the press association's office dictated the story into the telephone while reporters at type-writers in many newspaper offices struggled to copy off the stories as he read.

There were muttered curses and shouts of "Wait a minute!" all along the wire, but the fellow in the press association went right on reading.

The madly-typing reporters dreaded especially the stories on Chinese revolutions, with their usual assortment of outlandish names, or federal budget stories with ranks of figures that are particularly hard to copy off with the hunt and peck system.

A NORMAL WORKDAY was 12 hours, frequently extended into 16 when the reporter drew a night assignment to cover a Council meeting or some other civic function.

Boys went straight into the business from high school and often the town's elders would read eagerly the next day a factual, knowledgeable account of their proceedings written by a beardless boy far short of voting age.

There were all the usual news sources, plus some more that have faded from the scene. Stores, railroad stations, hotels and livery stables were checked regularly by reporters in quest of news on the departure of the town's citizens and the arrival of distinguished visitors.

The reporter would hurry back to the office to write a full column of things like: "Henry Botts says Salineville is still in the midst of a dry spell, but the corn crop is doing tolerably well."

Today the telephone is a major tool in newsgathering, but in the bygone era it could not be utilized so fully. The newspaper had a telephone, of course, and so did the leading groceries and other business places, along with factories and a few celebrated citizens.

But the news-seeker could not pick up the telephone and communicate quickly with virtually any point in the city. The telephone just hadn't spread that widely.

Publication of a local photo was an event of noteworthy importance, both to the newspaper and its readers. Because the processing required a long span of days, the photo was worked out well in advance on some civic event that had no real time element. Then the photo was taken after many conferences on arrangements and the photographer delivered a print to be sent out of town via mail to an engraving plant.

A FEW DAYS LATER, the engraving was returned, subject to much scrutiny and comment from everyone in the plant. When the press rolled with that local photo displayed proudly in the middle of Page One, all work stopped while the picture was examined and commented upon from every angle.

Few newspapers outside metropolitan centers employed full-time photographers. But every newspaperman of that era can recall helping a photographer set up a huge box camera on a tripod and watching while he adjusted a shroudlike cloth over his head and the rear of the camera.

It frequently was the reporter's job to hold the flash powder on a device like a brick-layer's hod. When the photographer touched off the powder, there was a loud blast, a momentary brilliant flash and then a cloud of thick white smoke that obscured the surroundings for minutes.

An experienced reporter was an authority in many fields, because he would be called upon one minute to write a story about a major fire or a municipal budget and turn the next moment to a fluffy, adjective-lined story of a wedding or a tea party.

He knew civil and criminal law in all their usual aspects and could interpret the intricacies of courts from the squire's tribunal to the highest bench in the state. Municipal finances and legislation were another of his strongpoints.

And he knew politics and politicians. Along with each man's name, he could reel off a list of his friends and supporters. More important, he knew each office-holder's or aspirant's enemies, because the disgruntled could be counted on for significant stories and tips when the friends would remain silent.

Looked upon as a man of letters, the old-time reporter frequently was sought out to write speeches for civic occasions for the mayor or a commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. He winced when the speaker mangled a word or placed emphasis in the wrong place. Then he went back to the office and turned out a story on the "ringing patriotic dissertation" just as though he had heard it for the first time.

ALSO AS A MAN of letters, the newspaperman found himself one of the leading lights in the countless literary societies, poetry circles and discussion groups that flourished in the days before more sophisticated, commercialized entertainment. At the drop of a hat, he could compose a flowery blurb on the city's unique advantages or pen six stanzas on the notable accomplishments of some dear departed.

Frayed of cuff, short of cash but swift in his endless rounds, the reporter enjoyed his reputation of being on the inside of all the community's happenings. His esprit de corps was legendary for one who usually drew a wage comparable to that of common labor—or less.

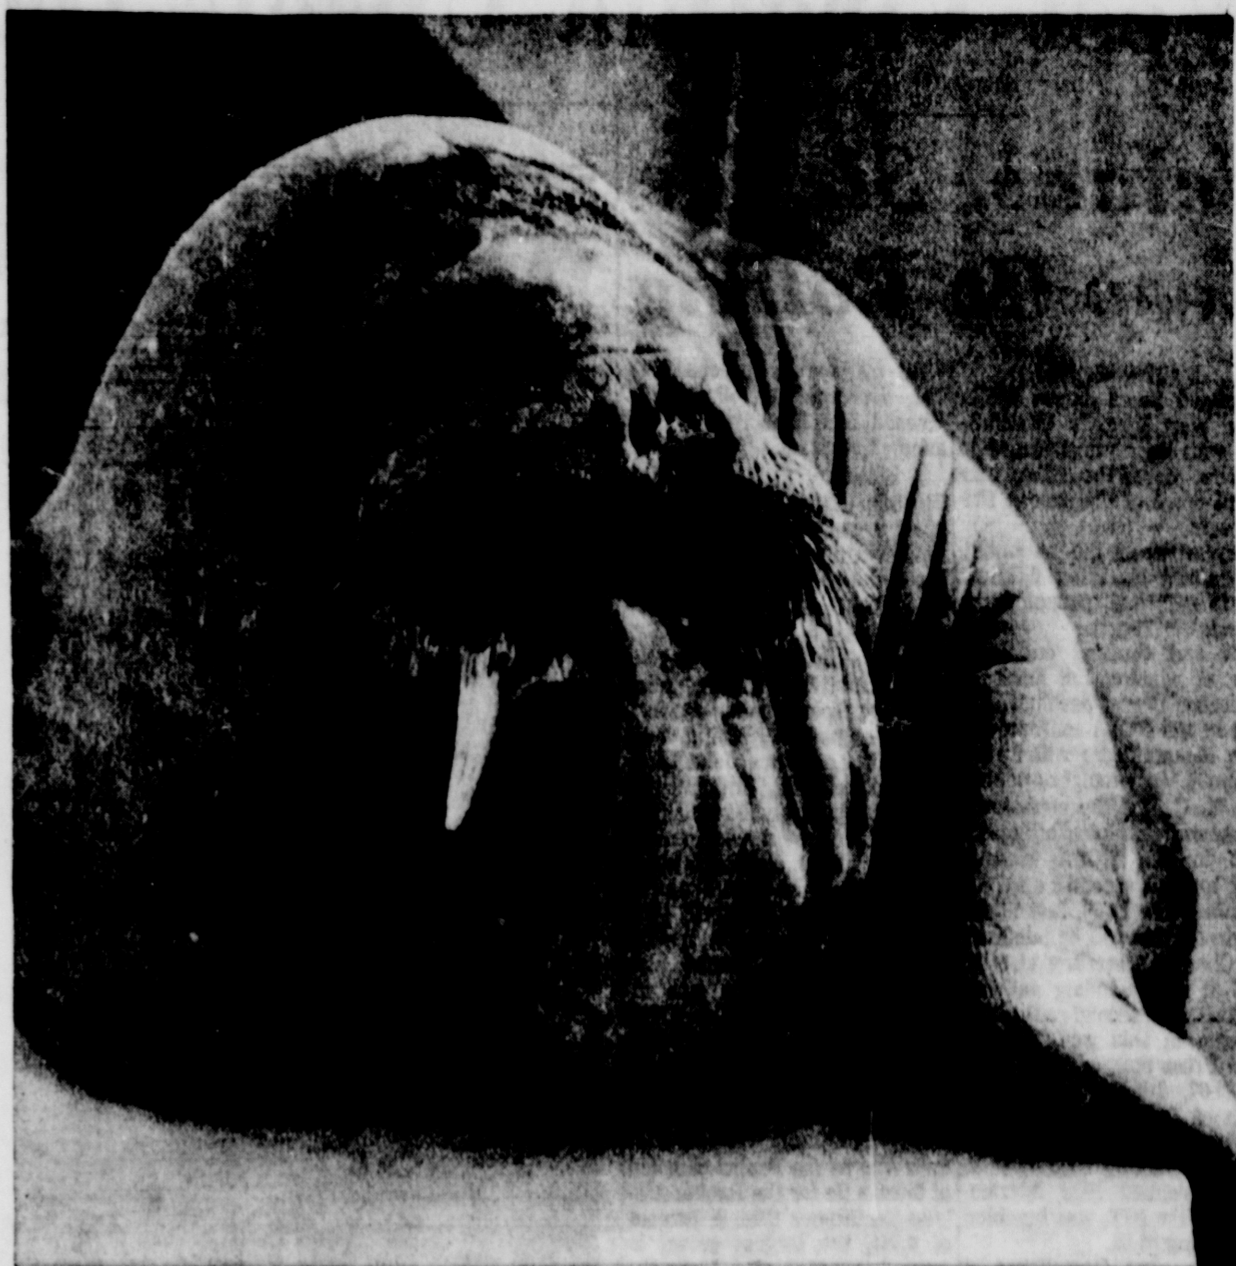

He affected an irreverent, cynical attitude toward the world and its happenings, but it was all a pose to insulate him against events that tore at his heart or worried his conscience. Underneath the brazen exterior, he wept inwardly at tragedy and scoffed at pretense and sham—after the story was written.

He worked in a badly-lighted, ill-ventilated office that was blazing hot in summer and cold as a tomb in winter. There was a spittoon at each desk and the walls were covered with old circus bills, photos of long-forgotten boxers and politicians and miscellany of every kind.

His style was archaic and his methods were museum pieces, by today's standards.

But he helped maintain and pass on tradition in a craft that today still asserts the public's right to know—promptly and accurately.

Where will a walrus get an Ohio River fishing license in 1968—West Virginia or Ohio?

That's what Woody, a 1,700-pound California resident, might be pondering—flipper in his mouth—as a result of the current efforts to change the boundary between the two states.

The Ohio legislature is considering a move to request Congress to move the boundary to the middle of the river, citing the inconvenience along with the difficulty of enforce-ing fishing and boating laws with the present boundary located on the low water mark of the Ohio side.

The West Virginia House of Delegates this week voted to inform Congress it will strongly resist any change.

Meanwhile, Woody, along with water enthusiasts on both sides of La Belle Riviere, are wondering whether Babb's Island will send its 1968 representatives to Columbus or Morgantown.

Stamps In The News

To commemorate the 50th anniversary of Gallipoli, an epic battle campaign of World War I, Australia has issued three new stamps of identical design. The letters "ANZAC" represent Australian and New Zealand Army Corps.

The design features "Simpson and his donkey" and is in three denominations — five pence, eight pence and two shillings three pence. The colors are khaki, blue and maroon.

The landing at Gallipoli in the Middle East took place on April 25, 1915, and is commemorated each year on that day to remember those who fell in that battle.

In line with the above-mentioned new Australian issue, it is interesting to note that the 1965 edition of the "Australian Commonwealth Specialists' Catalog" is now on the market. This is the 26th edition. It contains detailed information of Australian issues. Beginning with the Kangeroo series of 1913-1948 it continues through the 50th anniversary of the first air mail issue of 1964. The catalog is available for $1.75 from H.L. Lingquist Publications, 153 Waverly Pl., New York.

India soon will issue a stamp honoring the 100th anniversary of the birth of Lala Lajpatrai, an ardent proponent in the struggle for Indian independence. The stamp depicts a portrait of Lajpatrai wearing a turban. His dates, 1865-1928, are inscribed in the upper left and right-hand corners of the stamps, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

The Republic of Korea has issued new stamps honoring the 80th anniversary of the Korean postal system. The 3 won shows the first stamps of Korea. The 4 won illustrates a portrait of Yonk Sik Hong. Designer is Kang Choon Whan.

The United Nations has prepared a 35mm. film strip containing 35 frames showing the design and manufacture of the first international postage stamps. It illustrates some of the more popular issues and the operations of the U.N. Postal Administration. The film strip is available to stamp clubs, high schools and organizations on a loan basis without charge. Write care of the United Nations Postal Administration, United Nations, N.Y.

Canada's first postage stamp of 1965 honors the purple violet, floral emblem of the Province of New Brunswick. This province has a rich stamp history and issued the first adhesive "postage labels" used in North America, preceding the U.S.

Health, Safety Tips

The ski season is here again.

Hundreds of thousands of Americans, young and old, from the warm south as well as the frigid north, are heading for the ski slopes for winter vacations centered around sliding down mountain and hillsides on skis.

The medical men who attend to the health needs of the skiers know that this season also will bring a bumper crop of broken ankles, twisted knees and the various other injuries, not to mention sore muscles, bruises and skinned flesh, that seem to be a part of skiing.

Most of these injuries need not happen, if skiers will observe a few common sense safety precautions.

Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association, offers 10 safety tips for skiers.

1. — Check your equipment before starting.
2. — Take the turn that really suits your skiing ability.
3. — Look both ways before starting, entering a new run, or turning.
4. — Take a course as far as possible from other skiers.
5. — Do not walk on the runs in ski boots or without skis.
6. — Anticipate the other skier's actions.

7. — Never stop in mid-slope or trail.

8. — Always fill in the snow dug out by a fall.

9. — Quit a half-hour earlier than you planned.

10. — Read the snow report, pay attention to signs and the suggestions of the Ski Patrol.

Most of these 10 tips can be summed up in one short phrase — ski under control. Even experienced skiers sometimes have accidents, but the beginner who zips down a slope at speeds far beyond his ability to stop or turn is much more likely to get hurt.

Injuries are less frequent with skiers who are in good physical condition, are skilled and have good equipment.

As in any strenuous sport, it also is important to have a physical checkup before participating. Any ski manual can suggest some exercises that can be performed in the home for a few weeks prior to the ski vacation that will strengthen the important muscles and make skiing more fun as well as safer.

The longest novel ever published is conceded to be "Clarissa Harlowe," which was published in 1748, and written by Samuel Richardson (1689-1761). It is more than 200,000 words longer than the Bible.

You And The Law

Suppose that you are sitting in traffic, fuming about having to wait for the oncoming cars to clear to make a left, when, lo and behold, a miracle — the truck driver coming toward you slows and motions "go ahead and make your turn — I'll wait for you."

Happily you mash down on the accelerator, start your turn, but — bang — a car coming in the second lane, hidden by the truck which waited for you, slams into the side of your auto.

What happens now? Are you off the hook just because the truck driver motioned you to make your turn? Sorry, but, you aren't. The law concerning left turns will generally hold you responsible.

OHIO'S numerous traffic laws attempt to make motorizing on the highways as safe as possible — so long as all the drivers follow the rules. There are times, however, when drivers, knowing the law, will take a chance.

Most drivers have tempted fate on occasion in making a left turn across a busy highway in the face of oncoming fast-moving traffic. Unfortunately, the temptation is too often overpowering because by not "taking a chance" the driver must prepare for a long wait until the road is clear.

The law holds the driver responsible if, when making a left turn, he causes an accident. A person making a left turn must yield right of way to all oncoming traffic, says the law. Before you as a driver start a turn across the traffic flow, it is up to you to make certain the move can be made in safety.

THIS LAW on left turns applies to the driver whether he is turning in an intersection or into a private drive, such as a home driveway or parking lot.

The main thing to remember in making turns, whether right or left, is that the law requires you to exercise reasonable safety in making the move and that you give the appropriate signal. These laws were made to make the road safe for you and your family.

The 43-year-old pitcher, who has gone from his worst year in the major leagues to the worst team in the major leagues, arrived at the New York Mets' spring training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., Friday and promptly took part in two meetings.
In the first he was Spahn, the pitcher, and in the second he was Spahn, the coach. The Mets purchased the veteran southpaw from the Milwaukee Braves last November, planning to use him both as a player and as a pitching coach.
However, Spahn has not agreed to terms for the 1965 season.
"I'm not a holdout as a coach, just as a pitcher," Spahn said smiling.
Despite the lack of a contract, Spahn planned to start working out with the other pitchers and the catchers.

Folley Wins, Wants Floyd

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "I'd like Floyd Patterson next," said winner Zora Folley today.
"Me no good; he good," said loser Oscar Bonavena.
"I goofed," said Bonavena's manager, Marv Goldberg. "I thought Folley was all washed up."
So it's upward and onward to maybe Patterson at Madison Square Garden, May 10, for the 32-year-old Folley while it's back to the small clubs for more lessons for the crude, 22-year-old Argentine.
Folley, the fourth ranking heavyweight contender from Chandler, Ariz., did everything but knock out the previously unbeaten South American in a near shutout of the Garden Friday night. He won by rounds scores of 9-1, 9-1, and 10-0 from the three officials. The Associated Press had it 9-1 for Folley.
"I'd like to fight Patterson next," said the modest, articulate Folley, unbeaten in his last seven fights. "I know Patterson wants to fight once more while waiting for the outcome of the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston fight (May 25). I'm more than willing. The winner could get the title fight next."
"We're going to see Patterson and see if we can make it," said Garden matchmaker Teddy Brenner. "We've got a May 10 date open and with closed circuit television it could go over real big."

After Planes Collide

PEASE AIR FORCE BASE, N.H. (AP) — Extensive air and surface rescue operations continued today some 220 miles south of Cape Race, Nfld., for two huge air force jet planes that plunged into the sea Friday after colliding during a refueling operation.

The eight men aboard the two crafts were listed as missing. A six-engine B47 bomber from the 351st Bomb Squadron at Pease Air Force Base was "locked on" to the fueling hose of a four-engine KC135 tanker when the planes hit and plunged into the sea.

Bank Robber Signed Paper Wounds Four Officers, Slain Of Negro, 26

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A railroad worker who robbed the least lucrative cage of a bank and then couldn't start his getaway car was shot to death in 25-minute gun battle here with police Friday.

Four police officers were wounded before the gunman, identified as Leonard Glover, 43, of Cincinnati, staggered mortally wounded from a garage where he had taken refuge.

More than 20 police bullets shattered his body, the city morgue said.

Glover, married and the father of five, worked for the Pennsylvania Railroad in Midletown.

A neighbor saw Glover eight hours before the robbery trying to get his car started.

The car later played a key role in the drama which began when Glover, wearing a ski mask, approached the teller's cage of Mrs. Clyde (Polly) Jackson and demanded money.

Another teller, talking on the phone, tipped off police.

Outside the branch of the City National Bank, Glover's car wouldn't start, witnesses said. A passerby and Glover began pushing.

Assistant Manager Louis Jones rushed from the bank and shouted:

"Don't do that, he just robbed the bank."

Patrolman Jim Ray arrived on the scene and Glover shot Ray, firing through the car windshield, and then raced across back yards to hole up in the garage in a residential area a block from the bank.

More than $7,000 taken from the bank was recovered in a satchel the bandit carried with him.

He wounded three more officers there before scores of police and deputy sheriffs swarmed to the scene and ripped the garage with bullets.

None of the officers was seriously wounded.

"I didn't know why he'd come to my cage," said Mrs. Jackson. She normally handles transactions which don't require her to keep a lot of cash on hand.

Mrs. Jackson said she thought the man was joking until he showed her the gun, a military carbine.

"It's so strange, I wasn't afraid of the gun and I wasn't afraid of him," she said. What she thought about was "putting all that money in the bag and no one would see" to verify her explanation of a holdup.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — P.M. America sued his wife, Mrs. D. J. America, for divorce in the Cape Town Supreme Court.

"This is the first time I have heard that America has lost interest in Africa," said the judge.

Mr. America was granted the divorce.

Mother, Girl Hurt; Boy In Crash Cited

A Hammondsville mother and daughter were X-rayed and a LaCroft teen-ager was cited after a mishap Friday afternoon near City Hospital, police reported.

The collision at 3:28 p. m. at West Alley and W. Drury Ln. involved autos operated by Mrs. Catherine A. Kuhar, 37, of Hammondsville R. D. 1 and Bernard E. Beaver, 18, of Sherwood Ave.

The motorists blamed the icy condition of the alleys for their inability to stop.

Mrs. Kuhar said she was headed south in West Alley and blew her horn at the intersection. She said she saw the other auto after she started into the intersection, but the ice prevented her from stopping.

Beaver, traveling east in W. Drury Ln., told police he tried to stop when he saw the Kuhar auto but skidded on the ice.

Mrs. Kuhar was X-rayed at the hospital for possible right knee and hip injuries while Mary C. Kuhar, 17, was X-rayed for a possible right hip injury.

Beaver was cited by police for driving without an operator's permit.

Both right doors, right front fender, grille, hood and front bumper of Mrs. Kuhar's 1962 sedan was damaged. The front end of the 1957 two-door owned by Ettabelle Beaver of Substation also was damaged, officers said.

Soviet Party May Abandon Parley Plans

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party hints that it may abandon plans to hold a world Communist conference which could aggravate the Moscow-Peking dispute.

The party's theoretical journal Kommunist dropped the hint Friday as foreign Communist delegations began converging on the Soviet capital for a meeting Monday designed to prepare the groundwork for a world parley.

The article said the Soviet Communist party "together with other fraternal parties, are pressing for an end to the public discussion inside the world Communist movement."

"The Soviet Communist party is vigorously coming out in favor of direct contacts and the expansion of consultations between all fraternal parties," it said.

The article, summarized by Tass news agency before the journal was available, made no mention of a world conference.

Pro-Soviet Communist parties in Italy and other European countries have urged such direct contacts as a substitute for a world parley. Peking itself has warned that a world conference would further split the Communist movement.

The Kommunist article came out on the heels of a Peking attack on Russia's new leadership, which indicated that Red China has not wavered from its hostility toward Soviet policies.

Peking loosed a new blast today in its official New China News Agency accusing the Soviet Union of continuing its ideological campaign against the Chinese.

Mine Sealing Plan Stalled

Michael Blischak, Jefferson County commissioner, has received a reply from the Water Pollution Control Board in Columbus, concerning proposed sealing of an abandoned mine on Yellow Creek with federal-state participation funds.

The inactive mine, owned by the North American Coal Corp., according to Blischak, produces pollution materials harmful to fish of the stream.

George E. Zeigler, assistant engineer, told Blischak that although both federal and state bills were presented in 1963, neither was approved.

He said that in December, on request of W. E. Bullard, Coordinator of the U. S. Public Health Service, the Ohio Department of Health submitted a number of areas in the state for a federal acid mine drainage control demonstration projects, including the Yellow Creek drainage area above Hammondsville.

Zeigler added that the Ohio projects are in competition with those submitted by several other coal mining states, and it is contemplated that the U. S. Public Health Service will require several months of field work evaluating the many projects submitted before a selection is made.

The engineer said he will be in Jefferson County late in March and would contact Blischak to discuss the problem.

Lodge Needs Help To Open Safe's Door

Officers of Eagles Lodge 457 said Friday afternoon they expect to seek expert help in opening the doors of a big safe that were left hopelessly jammed in an amateurish burglary—with $300 of the lodge's money inside.

Damage to the safe accounted for the major loss in the entry, which was discovered Thursday afternoon.

The overall cash loss was approximately $40, all of it in change from three coin-operated machines, lodge officials said. Approximately $33 was taken from a cigarette machine and the loss from a bowling machine and a music box accounted for about $7 more.

Three bottles of whisky were removed from a smashed cabinet behind the bar.

The lodge was able to furnish a report on the loss yesterday after taking an inventory. In an initial report to police, the quantity of whisky taken was unknown and only the missing receipts from the cigarette machine had been totaled.

Police Capt. Robert H. Pyle, who directed the investigation of the burglary, said the intruders defeated their own purpose when they battered the handles off the big floor safe. In addition, they knocked off the combination dial, smashed the hinges and made several unsuccessful attempts to drive a chisel into the crack where the two doors meet.

The chisel finally was driven into the front of the safe and then became lodged in the fire-resistant concrete lining. Lodge officials succeeded in removing the chisel from the door yesterday.

They agreed with Capt. Pyle that an expert's help will be needed to open the jammed doors of the safe. The captain said a lock expert may have to use a cutting torch to make a hole in the front of the safe, remove the combination and then manipulate the various locking devices.

The captain commented yesterday that the attempted safe entering obviously was the work of amateurs. He said the intruders were "working against themselves" when they knocked the handles off the doors with a sledge.

Two Colleges Set Tuition Changes

Tuition changes have been announced by two district colleges. The College of Steubenville has established a flat fee of $450 per semester for all full-time students and an increase of $75 per semester for board and room, effective with the fall term beginning in September.

Geneva College, at Beaver Falls, will increase its credit hour rate from $29 to $33 for on-campus courses. Courses taken at off-campus centers will be boosted from $30 to $34. The changes will become effective with the summer term beginning in June.

Tuition for the regular nine-month term beginning in September will be increased from $840 to $970.

The Rev. Columba J. Devlin, T.O.R., president of Steubenville, said there will be no increase in fees and that part-time commuting students still will pay at the rate of $25 per semester hour.

He said the decision to set up a flat tuition charge followed a recommendation from the faculty committee on institutional planning that general degree requirements of the college be increased from a minimum of 124 semester hours to 130 hours and that departmental major requirements be increased from 24 to a minimum of 28 hours of study.

IRS Clarifies Return On Interest, Dividend

Federal income taxpayers in Northern Ohio who have dividend or interest income to report won't need to file a Schedule B this year. This information can now be reported right on the regular Form 1040, according to C. W. Glotzbach, acting director of Internal Revenue.

The second side of the single page Form 1040 has space for dividend and interest income data. Previously this information had to be reported on the separate Schedule B.

Phone Firm's Revenues Up

The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. has reported that as a result of the continuing strong demand for its services, its revenues last year increased 5.9 per cent to $357,208,000, while operating expenses climbed 8.3 per cent.

At the same time, telephone plant in service increased 6.8 per cent as construction expenditures for the year topped $100 million for the first time. The company's total plant investment went over the billion dollar mark.

In Ohio Bell's annual report, Claude M. Blair, president, said that Ohio Bell increased the number of its employees by 800 in 1964 as the company spent $103,000,000 on expansion and modernization. This stepped-up program benefiting Ohio's economy was undertaken in line with the intent of Congress when it reduced Federal income tax rates. Another construction program of well over $100 million is planned for this year.

Net income for the year was $57,332,000, an increase of $3,882,000 over 1963. Earnings per share were $1.92, compared with $1.81 in 1963.

Blair said Ohio Bell revenues this year will be lowered by the long distance rate reductions recently announced by the Federal Communications Commission and the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. These reductions are expected to save Ohioans between $5 and $6 million a year.

The phone company's annual report also points out that while other prices continue to rise, Ohio Bell's basic rates for local service have been constant for the last six years. And interstate rates are now at the lowest level in history, more than 20 per cent below 1940 rates.

Total taxes paid by Ohio Bell last year were $83,827,000 or $27.45 for each phone in service. In addition, the 10 per cent Federal excise tax on local and long distance service cost subscribers over $32 million, or $10.56 per telephone in 1964.

There are now 3,125,000 phones in Ohio Bell territory.

Increases Reported In County Sales Tax

Columbiana County sales tax collections totaled $48,507 in the two weeks ending Feb. 20, up $1,446 from the $47,061 shown at the same time in 1964, State Treasurer John D. Herbert reported today at Columbus.

The collections stand at $937,072 since the start of the fiscal year last July 1, a boost of $48,722 from the $888,350 shown at the same time in the preceding fiscal year.

Sales taxes on county motor vehicle sales hit $23,429 in the two weeks ending Feb. 20, a gain of $1,412 from the $21,017 listed at the same time in 1964. Since the start of the fiscal year, they stand at $461,582, an increase of $39,593 from the $421,989 shown at the same time in the preceding fiscal year.

Celts Clinch Division Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Boston's amazing Celtics, have clinched their ninth straight Eastern Division championship in the National Basketball Association and reign as professional sport's most consistent dynasty.

The Celtics wrapped up the Eastern title Friday night and are pointing for their eighth consecutive NBA championship.

"We always get a big kick out of it," exclaimed Coach Red Auerbach after his Celtics ran over the San Francisco Warriors 130-112 in Friday's title-clinching game.

In the title-winning game the Celtics coasted to an 18 point victory despite playing reserves the entire second quarter. Sam Jones led Boston scoring with 26 points.

The victory advanced Boston to a 56-13 season mark and promoted Auerbach to remark "we're going for the league record of 60 wins in a season."

With 11 games left, including one at Los Angeles tonight Auerbach said he figured the Celtics have a good chance to break the victory record.

"But it's not an important record," he said. "The important thing is to win."

The pair enlisted Feb. 19 under the "Buddy Flight" plan and are currently taking their basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex. Both are graduates of East Liverpool High School.

Plans for a "Buddy Flight" in the middle of March are in progress, and anyone interested in training with other local area youths may contact Sgt. Stanley at his office on the third floor of the City Hall.

Ex-Army Private Gets 2 Years In Passports Case

CHICAGO (AP) — A former U.S. Army private allegedly trained as a Russian spy has been sentenced to two years in prison for delivering 15 U.S. passports to Soviet agents.

Paul Carl Meyer was sentenced Friday by Judge Julius J. Hoffman of the U.S. District Court after he pleaded guilty to violating the federal law against use or delivery of passports to other persons.

Meyer was charged with giving the passports to Russians in East Berlin in February 1953.

D. Arthur Connelly, chief of the criminal division of the U.S. Attorney's office, told Judge Hoffman that Meyer first met two Soviet agents in early 1953 in East Berlin and offered them the 15 passports. They accepted them but told Meyer he would be more valuable if he obtained United States political secrets in West Berlin.

Jobless Figures Show 2.3% Jump In West Virginia

CHARLESTON — Unemployment in West Virginia in January jumped 2.3 per cent from the month before and left 10 per cent of the state's work force without jobs, the State Department of Employment Security reported Friday.

The department said of the total labor force of 588,000 persons, 58,800 were out of work. This compares with a labor force of 590,400 in December when 45,300 persons were jobless.

The increase was blamed by the department on usual seasonal losses of jobs in such areas as the construction industry.

The department also pointed out that the January figure was well under the 11.4 per cent unemployment rate in January a year ago.

The statistics for January 1964 showed a total work force of 587,900 persons with 66,900 persons unemployed.

Miner Hurts Eye While At Work

A city miner, injured while working early today, was admitted to City Hospital where two other persons were treated Friday.

Lester Jones, 45, of 229 W. 2nd St. was in "satisfactory" condition after having been admitted with an eye injury at 4:35 a. m. He was hit in the eye with a metal chip while pounding on a chisel at the Peggs Run Coal Co. mine at Beaver.

Michael Paul Malcomb, 13, son of Paul Malcomb, 1708 Alpha St., was treated for an injury to his left hand suffered when he struck it against a locker door at East Junior High School.

Charles Armstrong, 319 Grant St., suffered a fractured second right finger when he fell down cellar steps at home.

Holdup Suspect Due Preliminary Hearing

A preliminary hearing for Carl Lee Hawk Jr., 23, of 1615 Riverside Ave., Wellsville, will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. before County Judge James L. MacDonald on charges of armed robbery.

Hawk was charged by Police Chief John Hephner of Wellsville when allegedly identified as the masked gunman who robbed Betty's Grocery, 906 Wood St., Wellsville, Feb. 17.

He appeared Friday in County Court with his counsel, Atty. Richard Kennedy, who requested the preliminary hearing.

Bond of $2,500 was set but he was returned to the County Jail as he also has a detainer against him for parole violation.

Senate Move Set Today On Death Penalty

CHARLESTON — It was the Senate's move today in the legislature's disagreement over terms of a bill to abolish the death penalty in West Virginia.

The Senate was expected to refuse today to back down from its position. This would complete the preliminaries to handling the disagreement to a joint conference committee for a compromise attempt.

The two chambers have passed the bill by big margins—82-15 in the House and 20-11 in the Senate—but in different forms. The issue between the chambers is the question of parole.

Both versions provide a life prison term as the only sentence for first-degree murder and as the maximum penalty for kidnapping, rape and treason against the state. These are the crimes which may, under the present law, result in sentence to the electric chair.

Under the House version, a life sentence for one of these crimes could carry an added provision barring the prisoner from ever being freed on parole. At present a life-term prisoner becomes eligible for parole consideration after 10 years.

Before passing the House-approved bill, the Senate deleted the no-parole options. Parole eligibility would operate as it does not under the Senate bill.

The House held out for its own version Friday, voted 85-11 against accepting the Senate amendments and sent the bill back to the Senate.

Glassworkers To Get Hospital Benefit Hike

CINCINNATI (AP)—Workers at nine plants of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. will have increased hospitalization benefits in the second year of their current contract, a labor official says.

Ralph Rieser, president of the AFL-CIO Glassworkers Union, said the company agreed to the hike in three days of contract review talks that ended Friday. One of the plants involved is at Mount Vernon, Ohio. Rieser said the benefits amount to a penny an hour more for each worker.

Longest hole-in-one made in 1964 was 400 yards, reports Golf Digest. It was made by Thomas D. Cheatwood of Oklahoma City on the sixth hole at the Lake Hefner Golf Club.
